...And so Graan and his new aquatic friends found another big shell; and then another; and then another after that!

The unlikely group of dimension traveling companions consisting of mostly gastropods and one groundhog explored many strange worlds and had many interesting adventures, but unfortunately the zine in which this comic was being published was getting ready to be shut down, so the artist had to fast-forward to the ending so they wouldn't be left stranded in the ether indefinitely!

So Old St. Nick found a new home for wandering nudibranchs and things, and it was finally time to say goodbye.

He found a sootable place for the misfit Annanias as well.

And, at long last, Graun went home.
